

Thanks for the unbelievable week our team spent down there with you last week. I am still a little disoriented from the experience, but in a good way. As I went upstairs in my house on the day we got back, I walked by two empty bedrooms and thought, "There is about the same square footage in those two rooms as in the entire house we were building for Angela and her three kids."

You all are truly doing the work of Jesus; both comforting the afflicted and also afflicting the comfortable.
